VINTAGE PROFILE 5 STARS

The year 2010 will be remembered in Montalcino for a delay in the budding due to below average spring temperatures and for the frequent rainfalls that characterized this period, a situation that consequently favoured a strong vegetative development and caused some problems in the flowering phase, resulting in a slight decrease of production, of around 10%.

The summer phase was marked by a stable climate with good weather conditions, and only a few rainfalls during the month of August that mitigated the heat and favoured a recovery of the phenological cycle even though the beginning of the veraison took place ten days late compared to the average of the last ten years.

But Sangiovese grapes show their total capacity for recovery if, during the ripening of the grapes, the weather remains favourable – and this is what happened this year, allowing for a harmonious ripening of the phenological and sugar contents.

The wines obtained from this harvest – begun after delays that varied from a minimum of 8 to a maximum of 14 days – manifest therefore, extraordinary features for Sangiovese, both with regard to their organoleptic profile as to the parameters of their composition
